The object of the Bill is to amend the Prisons Act to provide that punishments awarded to prison officers for offences committed against discipline shall no longer be held in abeyance until either the time prescribed for appeal has elapsed or, where an appeal has been lodged, the decision on such an appeal has been delivered or the appeal has been withdrawn.

Bill No. 14 of 1997

TRADE DISPUTES (AMENDMENT) BILL, 1997
(Published on 6th June, 1997)

MEMORANDUM

A draft of the above Bill, which it is proposed to present to the National Assembly, is set out below.

2. The main object of the Bill is to amend the Trade Disputes Act to enable the Commissioner to mediate upon disputes reported or referred to him prior to the establishment of the Industrial Court on 9th October, 1992, and also to enable the Industrial Court judge to deal with and determine disputes originating or remaining unresolved prior to the date when the Industrial Court commenced to operate.

3. The functions conferred on the Commissioner by the Trade Disputes Act are many. It is impossible for the Commissioner to perform all the functions conferred on him personally. To enable the Commissioner to efficiently perform his functions, it is necessary that some of the functions should be delegated to some of his officers.

4. Clause 4 therefore provides that the Commissioner may delegate any of his functions under the Act to specified labour officers.

5. The Bill also seeks to amend the provision requiring that reports of trade disputes made to the Commissioner should be made in writing. Such a provision makes it difficult for those who are unable to read or write to report their grievances to a labour officer. Provision is being made for disputes, other than disputes of collective nature, to be reported orally.

6. The Bill also proposes to amend the provisions relating to limitation of actions. Under the existing law, an employer or an employee is deemed to have waived his right of protest against termination of contract if he does not register his protest within 14 days on learning of the termination. The Commissioner is to be empowered to condone, for good cause shown, delay in making a report. Similarly the limitation period within which the Commissioner is required to issue his certificate to parties to a dispute to refer the dispute to the Industrial Court is to be amended. The Commissioner is to be given the discretion to decide what period he considers reasonable for a dispute to be referred to the Industrial Court.

Insertion of sections 6A and 6B in

(d) by adding at the end of subsection (4) thereof, the following new subsection —
