JOHN AINSWORTH
H. M's. Sub-Commissioner.

The following despatch from His Majesty's Secretary of State to His Majesty's Commissioner East Africa on the subject of the report of the Land Committee is published for general information.

By Order

A. C. HOLLIS

Secretary.

SIR,

I have had under my consideration the Report of the Committee appointed by the late Sir D. Stewart, to enquire into questions relating to land in the East Africa Protectorate and also his despatch No. 455 of the 14th of August commenting on it.

2. I recognise the care and ability shown in the compilation of this Report and in many points I am in agreement with the conclusions of the Committee. Thus I fully concur in their recommendation that a survey of the Protectorate should be taken in hand without delay; and, as you are aware, a large provision has been made in the Estimates of next year for this service and some of the surveyors selected for the work will leave this country for East Africa in the course of the present month.

3. There are, however, other questions upon which I am unable, as at present advised, to concur in the proposals of the Committee: and, having regard to the immense importance to the future prosperity of the Protectorate of adopting a right policy in questions relating to land, I have decided to take no further action in regard to those proposals pending the report of the officer whom it is proposed to appoint under the title of Commissioner for Land, and whose selection I hope to be able to announce to you at no distant date.

4. While regretting the delay in dealing with these questions I trust that the material addition to the staff of the Survey Department and the appointment of an Assistant Crown Advocate will enable the existing system of land settlement to be worked at once with better results.

5. In these circumstances I do not find it necessary to express an opinion at present on most of the proposals of the Committee, but there is one question of principle on which I regret to find myself, apparently at least, at variance with the views of the signatories of the Report.

6. The Committee on page 2 of their Report complain of the fact that "assignments or transfer of interest is only allowed with the permission of the Commissioner," and on page 3 they write:—"All restrictions on transfer and forfeitures without compensation should be abolished as far as possible, title and tenure should be made as secure and the terms for settlers as easy as possible, having due regard to the observance by them of the general conditions and obligations for development." Again they regret that capitalists have refrained from employing their capital in the country on account of "the restrictions placed by the Government on freedom of transfer and the insecurity of the titles offered to them."

7. On these passages and on the general tenor of this part of the Report, I would observe that, while I am as anxious as the Committee can be to encourage the settlement and development of the Protectorate by persons either of large or small capital, I consider the evils of unrestricted speculation in land much more serious than the Committee appear to regard them as being.

8. It is not merely the question of the discreditable incidents which characterize the periods of inflated speculation known as "land booms," or the losses to individuals who may happen to purchase land at artificially enhanced prices. If this were all, the dangers referred to might be incurred, as the Committee appear to suggest, in view of the advantage of attracting settlers and capital to the country, even by speculative attractions partaking of the nature of a lottery. But the evils of allowing land in a new country to be transferred freely without any regard to the intention of the transferee to utilise within a reasonable time the resources of the land, are not confined to the period of depression and stagnation which inevitably follows a time of inflated speculation but have a wider scope.

9. I am not aware whether any members of the Committee have had occasion to acquaint themselves with the history of the land question in the Australasian colonies: but it appears to me that that history contains some useful warnings for other countries in a similar position.

10. The policy of His Majesty's Government in the first half of the last century was directed towards restricting the alienation of land in Australasia by imposing conditions of tenure, such as cultivation of the land or maintenance of a certain number of labourers, by putting a comparatively high price (£1 an acre) on the sale of lands in fee simple, and by granting leases only for short periods.

11. This policy was, however, strongly opposed by an influential section of the Colonists—especially by those who occupied large areas under temporary licenses, which they wished to convert into freehold or long leasehold tenure. These persons fought for what was known in New South Wales as the "three F's" :—Fixed Tenure, Fixed Rents, and Free Sales.

12. Their views eventually triumphed in all parts of Australasia, so that, from about 1850 onwards, enormous areas of land were alienated from the Crown without any adequate return either in the way of purchase money or in the improvement of the lands granted.

13. The result was that in New South Wales in 1891, 42 million acres had been alienated in freehold, 22 millions of which were in the hands of only 677 persons : while only 2 per cent. of the 42 millions and 1/10th per cent. of the 22 millions were cultivated. And similar figures are recorded in the other colonies.

14. New immigrants, therefore, instead of settling on the land, the best part of which was alienated to people who made little or no use of it, were driven to the towns, and the progress of the country has been seriously impeded.

15. Several of the Governments have been driven to repurchase at high rates, with a view to closer settlement, lands which were originally alienated for insignificant sums ; while New Zealand has endeavoured to check the further progress of the evil by enacting that no person holding more than 2,000 acres shall be allowed to obtain any further grant of Crown lands, (other than a small grazing farm or a pastoral lease).

16. With these examples before me, I fear that, in the interests of the future prosperity of the Protectorate, I shall be unable to assent to any legislation which facilitates the holding of land in large areas for speculative purposes, either by permitting large grants of land without adequate securities for its development, or by permitting the holders of smaller areas to part with their holdings without imposing on the transferee a similar liability to make use of the land.

17. It may become advisable to make considerable grants of land to encourage persons who may be willing, for such a consideration, to embark large sums of money on the construction of railways, but I trust that such cases will be rare and that it may be possible to impose even there an obligation to sell the land to settlers within a reasonable period.

18. I have already authorised you by my telegram of the 10th instant to publish the report of the Committee and I approve of your publishing this despatch also in the Gazette at an early date.

I have the honour to be

Sir,

Your most obedient,

humble servant,

(Signed) ELGIN
