2. From and after the 1st day of October 1907, the Legal Status of Slavery shall be and remain abolished throughout the Protectorate, and all claims of whatever description made before any Court in the Protectorate in respect of the alleged relations of Master and Slave shall be referred to the District Court

3. From and after the 1st day of October 1907, a District Court or Special Court shall decline to enforce any rights claimed over the body, service, or property of any person on the ground that such person is a slave, whenever any person shall claim that he is lawfully possessed of such rights other than rights over property but in accordance with the law existing in the Protectorate immediately before the making of this Ordinance and has by this Ordinance been deprived of them, and has suffered loss by such deprivation, then the Court shall serve or caused to be served upon the person making such claim a notice requiring him to appear at the Court on a date to be stated in such notice, but not within 28 days of the date of such notice, to prove his claim. Provided however that a District Court or Special Court shall enforce, according to the law in force immediately before the making of this Ordinance, any claim made by a master to or in respect of property belonging to him in the possession of his slave at the date in this Section first mentioned.

Provided however that the Court shall in no case award more than one hundred rupees as compensation for the loss of the services of a slave.
