GENERAL NOTICE No. 937

LOCUST REPORT, 13TH JULY, 1935.

THE RED LOCUST.

Kenya.

The locust infestation reported on the 25th June has proved less serious than was anticipated. Most of the swarms from the south entered the Masai District and are continuing their flight northward through the Central Province, where they are causing little or no damage to crops. Some swarms have already passed the Nyeri District, and if the present rate of flight is maintained they may enter the Northern Frontier District and cause no loss to standing crops.

Two or three small swarms flying northward have been located approximately 100 miles from the coast, but not being near cultivation loss to crops is not feared.

It was anticipated that these locusts would be diseased, but so far this has not been detected. All swarms are immature, and laying will not take place for several weeks.

Forecast.—It is not possible to predict if further locusts will come northward from Tanganyika, but there are indications that the infestation is declining. Should other swarms arrive, it is probable that they too will pass northward and not attack crops to any great extent, owing to the presence of food in the form of grass. The possibility of laying in the Northern Frontier District is being considered. If this takes place out of reach of anti-locust operations, hoppers might emerge and flyers resulting come southward towards the end of the year. This situation is being borne in mind and all precautions possible will be taken.

Tanganyika.

Recent reports state that the position on the Tanganyika-Kenya border is favourable, and that infestation is on the wane. Disease is present, and causing death to flying locusts. There have been no further invasions in the Tanga and Moshi Districts, and small swarms located near Arusha are inactive and scattered.

for Director of Agriculture.
