- (iii) whether and in what areas pineapple acreage in Kenya should be extended beyond the traditional growing areas,
- (iv) whether and how production of food crops for processing should be regulated, with particular reference to production of pineapple for canning,
- (v) what additional crops should be developed for processing, either as complementary to the canning of pineapple or for processing independent of a pineapple cannery,
- (vi) the need for and location of increased processing facilities in the light of (i) to (v) above, including the need for new canning plants,
- (vii) what methods of processing should be considered as alternatives to canning,
- (viii) the capital requirements of the present and possible future food processing factories to provide for increased facilities and the source from which this capital might derive,
- (ix) the organization of the Food Processing Industry, with particular reference to the proper relationship between the growers the present private interests and the Government
