THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 53 OF 1979

Parties—

Domestic &amp; Hotel Workers' Union

Family Planning Association of Kenya

Issue in dispute—

Wrongful termination of Gabriel N. Nyanjui.

1. The Domestic & Hotel Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Family Planning Association of Kenya shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 17th October and the 27th November, 1979 and in addition to relying on their written and verbal submissions called the following witnesses to give evidence on oath:

Claimants.—Gabriel Nyanjui.

Respondents.—Eratus Muteru.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated the 14th March, 1979, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on the 7th August, 1979, together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

Mr. Nyanjui started working for the Respondent on the 6th March, 1972, as a clerk/typist and on the 15th February, 1973, he was reappointed as clerk/storekeeper.

His services were terminated on the 26th September, 1977, when he had just come back from leave during which he got married. He was to resume duty on the 26th but came to work on the 27th September as during his leave period there was a public holiday.

The Claimants took up the matter on his behalf as he was their shopsteward and the dispute was investigated by the Ministry of Labour. The Ministry's findings and recommendation were conveyed to the parties on the 27th February, 1979 in the following terms:

"It is evident that the frustrations of the workers led them to join the union with Mr. Nyanjui as the elected shopsteward.

From the submissions there is no doubt that the management were completely opposed to the organization of their workers into the union. Mr. Nyanjui being in the centre of it all must have been regarded as the trouble-maker.

Mr. Nyanjui had his shortcomings as indicated in written warnings. It is more noted that some of them arose as a result of his duty as a shopsteward representing his members. In my opinion the possibility of Mr. Nyanjui being victimized due to his trade union activities cannot be ruled out. I therefore find the termination wrongful.

Recommendations:

I recommend that Mr. Nyanjui be paid his termination benefits and in addition three months' pay for wrongful termination."

In 1973 the Claimants embarked on recruiting the Respondents' employees into their membership with the result that check off forms were signed by the workers. On the 24th November, Mr. Nyanjui was elected the shopsteward. From then on there is evidence of a protracted struggle between the Claimants and the Respondents on the matter of recognition. Inevitably Mr. Nyanjui who was the Claimants' shopsteward figured prominently in this affair. The Court is satisfied that the delay in the union recognition was partly due to the Respondents' reluctance to do so due to their financial position as they depend on donations from international agencies and partly because at one stage the Respondents wanted to recognize the Claimants through the Kenya National Council of Social Services. Later on, however, they were advised by the Council that they should recognize the Claimants directly.

Between 1973 and 1977, E. Muteru, who is Respondents' administrative officer in charge of administration department, acted as the director on a couple of occasions, first in September/October, 1974, and then in 1977. The Court has gone through the very detailed appendices to the Respondents' submissions and finds that most of the allegations of negligence, absenteeism, shortcomings and warnings mainly due to Mr. Nyanjui's involvement in trade union affairs were handed out during the period when Mr. Muteru was acting as the director. The Court notes that Mr. Muteru at one stage advocated a staff association to the workers as against their joining the Claimants. The relationship between Mr. Muteru and Mr. Nyanjui deteriorated from the time Mr. Nyanjui was elected the shopsteward and the Court is convinced that the Claimants' efforts to get recognition from the Respondents resulted in a personal struggle between these two persons. Some of the incidents for which Mr. Nyanjui was warned are very trivial and the incident of Sh. 2 stamp having been used instead of Sh. 3 one has been overplayed by the Respondents. There is no conclusive evidence of any fraud on the part of Mr. Nyanjui.

At the same time the Court finds that Mr. Nyanjui's election as a shopsteward obviously went to his head with the result that he started conducting himself in a rather aggressive manner and did not behave properly as was expected of an employee. This misbehaviour, however, did not amount to insubordination but obviously annoyed Mr. Muteru considerably.

The Court does not intend to analyse each and every incident that was referred to between Mr. Muteru and Mr. Nyanjui for the simple reason that they are not all that important. The Court, however, must say that Mr. Nyanjui did not play down his trade union activities pending recognition. He would have been well advised to do so.

The Claimants have asked the Court to find that Mr. Nyanjui was victimized for his trade union activities and to award his reinstatement along with payment of full wages for the whole period he has been out of employment plus other benefits. They maintained that there was no reason why the Ministry had not recommended in accordance with their prayer.

The Respondents on the other hand strongly submitted that they were never opposed to trade union activity and as such they had not victimized Mr. Nyanjui but had terminated his services because of flagrant disobedience, insubordination, gross misconduct in that he absented himself from work with no justifiable reason and engaged in activities intended to irritate his employer.

After careful consideration of all the submissions the Court has come to the conclusion that the real reason for the termination of Mr. Nyanjui's services was his trade union activities and the Court therefore finds that he has suffered a wrongful termination. Unfortunately for Mr. Nyanjui, his behaviour after being elected as a shopsteward left a lot to be desired and this coupled with the various other allegations, though minor, which have been levelled against him has made the Court to rule that his reinstatement is not warranted. Furthermore, since the Respondents are not a profit-making organization the Court is not inclined to award a very heavy compensation either.

Under all these circumstances the Court while finding that Mr. Nyanjui has suffered a wrongful dismissal has come to the conclusion that the Ministry of Labour's recommendation in this dispute should be upheld. The Court accordingly awards that Mr. Nyanjui should be paid his full salary and house allowance for the month of September, 1977, one month's salary and house allowance in lieu of notice and all his contributions to the superannuation scheme and three months' salary and house allowance by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that he has suffered.

Given in Nairobi on the 31st December, 1979.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 63 OF 1979

Parties—

Kenya Union of Commercial Food &amp; Allied Workers

Kirinyaga District Co-operative Union Ltd.

Issue in dispute—

Overtime for banking staff.

1. The Kenya Union of Commercial Food & Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the Claimants and Kirinyaga District Co-operative Union Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the Respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on the 7th December, 1979, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated the 21st July, 1979, duly signed by the parties was received by the Court on the 3rd October, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The Claimants have brought this dispute against the Respondents on behalf of their 50 members who they allege have worked about 127,200 hours as overtime for the period between November, 1976 to October, 1978, in the Respondents' banking section.

They base their claim on the overtime clause in the parties' collective agreement which was effective from the 1st October, 1971, for a period of three years but has continued to be in force since then. This clause reads as follows:

"Overtime shall be worked only in exceptional circumstances and advance approval must be obtained in writing from the manager or from someone else who may be authorized by the manager. Any number of hours worked in excess of those laid down in paragraph 2 hereinbefore shall be paid for as overtime payment and calculated by dividing the basic monthly wage (exclusive of housing allowance or any other allowance or allowances) by—

- (a) in respect of watchmen by one three hundred and twelfth (312) of the employee's basic monthly wage;
- (b) in respect of all other employees by one one hundred ninety fifth (195) and thereafter by increasing the hourly rates as follows:
  - (i) For time worked in excess of the normal number of hours per week by one quarter of hourly rate.
  - (ii) For time worked on Sundays by one half of hourly rate.
  - (iii) For time worked on statutory public holidays by double hourly rate.

Provided locational managers, factory managers, supervisors and assistant managers shall be paid Sh. 60 flat rate every month and drivers Sh. 40 flat pay every month whether they worked overtime or not.

N.B.—Overtime worked shall be paid together with wages at the end of the month during which such overtime was worked or alternatively an employee may elect to be granted time off in lieu of overtime payment."

The Claimants allege that the Respondents have committed a serious breach of this clause in that instead of paying the workers the actual overtime which they had worked they had decided to pay each employee a sum of Sh. 70 per month by way of overtime. They indicated that they were prepared for this flat rate of Sh. 70 to be deducted from the workers' actual entitlement of their overtime claims under the aforesaid clause.

The Respondents admitted that they had started the system of paying a flat rate of Sh. 70 by way of overtime in the banking section without consulting or agreeing with the Claimants on this matter. They, however, pointed out that they were forced to adopt this method because the workers in the banking section had become very inefficient and lazy and often came to work slightly drunk in the afternoons. This resulted in the work not being finished during normal working hours and the workers had to work long hours by way of overtime. The chief accountant had reported this matter to their committee meeting held on the 7th December, 1976, and the discussion is recorded Minute No. 9/76/77.

The Respondents emphasized that this system did improve the efficiency in the banking section and that the cost of unnecessary overtime had been reduced. They asked the Court to find that the payment of a flat rate of Sh. 70 by way of overtime was reasonable.

The Respondents pointed out that the claims which were the subject matter of this dispute appeared to be fraudulent as to begin with some of these employees in respect of whom overtime had been claimed had been on leave during the period in respect of which overtime was being claimed and further if the Claimants' allegation of 106 hours' overtime per month was taken seriously it would mean that every worker worked about 5.3 hours per day as overtime. This, they submitted, was not only ridiculous but fraudulent. Moreover, in 1977 there were only 35 employees in the banking section and not 50.

The Court finds that there are some very unsatisfactory aspects of this dispute and they have really come as a surprise because the Court expects the parties to the industrial relations in this country to fully understand by now the importance of the collective agreements and the strict adherence to their provisions. They should also know how and when such agreements are revised. If the Respondents' management had not been so ignorant or had not decided to deliberately violate the clause regarding overtime in the collective agreement the workers would not have been given this opportunity of making false and inflated claims in respect of alleged overtime worked.

The Court has no hesitation in finding that the Respondents have committed a breach of the overtime clause as far as employees in the banking section are concerned but this does not mean that the Court can accept and allow inflated claims made by their employees through the Claimants. In fact during the hearing the Claimants' representative admitted that there could be some calculating error in working out the overtime claims. In view of what the Respondents have submitted there is no doubt that the Claimants' figures quoted in their appendix 3 are not genuine.

The Court must refer to the fact that the Respondents' chief accountant had made the following statement at the meeting of the 7th December, 1976:

"The Chief Accountant reported to the committee that there are incompetent persons in the banking who do not improve. Their work always remains behind and they cause delays in balancing books and in payout calculations. He went on and reported that some persons report on duty drunk after lunch hours. Their incompetency makes the banking section pay overtime averaging Sh. 100 p.m. which is very expensive."

The Court is of the view that the answer to this claim lies in the chief accountant's statement that the overtime averaged about Sh. 100 p.m.

The Court would have expected the Respondents through their chief accountant to replace inefficient workers and those who came drunk in the afternoon to be replaced with competent persons from their societies.

It is most unfortunate that the Respondents did not follow the managerial practices properly in this dispute but this error on their part does not entitle the Claimants to put forward exaggerated claims on behalf of their members.

The Court notes that the system of recording names of employees who remain behind after the normal working hours and the time they actually leave the offices continued to be followed for administrative purposes other than for the computation of overtime payment. This means that the necessary records are in possession of the Respondents.

After giving careful thought to the problems raised in this dispute the Court has come to the conclusion that the best method of dealing with it is to award the workers a flat rate of Sh. 100 p.m. which according to the chief accountant is the average overtime they worked. The sum of Sh. 70 which the Respondents have already paid to the workers should be deducted from this amount. The Court accordingly awards that all those employees in the banking section who have worked overtime during the material time should be paid the balance of Sh. 30 per employees per month and that this arrangement should continue from November, 1976, up to the end of December, 1979, and thereafter the Respondents should pay the employees their overtime claims strictly in accordance with the provisions of the collective agreement in force. The Court would like to make it clear to the parties that it is now up to them to go through their records, if need be with the assistance of the Provincial Labour Officer, Nyeri, to work out the arrears due to the various employees in the banking section in accordance with the directions given in the Court award.
