and

Pan African Insurance Co. Ltd.

2. Annual leave part (a).
3. Compassionate leave part (c).
4. Housing allowance.
5. Redundancy part (c) (i) (ii) (iii).

7. Loans.
8. Bonus.

INTERPRETATION APPLICATION

Ruling

The Court announced its award in the above dispute on the 25th October, 1979. The parties have put forward different interpretations on the Court award in respect of wages and wage increase and compassionate leave part (c).

The Claimants maintained that the Court award means that all the employees' wages should be brought up to the new wage rates awarded by the Court and on top of that they should get an increase of similar amount with a further minor adjustment to take them up to the next notch. If this is not done then the wage increases awarded to the employees would work out at around 8 per cent would be in line with the offer made by the Respondents during the hearing and the Claimants doubted if the Court intended to do that. They pointed out that the Respondents' employees were due a wage increase of 17.5 per cent under the Guidelines and there was no argument put forward on behalf of the Respondents as to why the workers should not get their entitlement under the Guidelines. Further they pointed out that the Court had retained the old annual increments instead of adopting the higher annual increments as had been offered by the Respondents. They maintained that the following increases were due to their members under the Court award:

	K.Sh.
A	140
B	160
C	170
D	210
E	310

The Claimants produced a paper showing actual picture which would emerge if their interpretation was upheld and maintained that it would be within the Guidelines.

The Respondents on the other hand maintained that the workers would get the new rate for their grade from 1st January, 1979 and then they would get their annual increase for that particular grade either on the 1st March or 1st October, 1979. They pointed out that the increases for the first year for the various grades as awarded, according to their interpretation ranged as follows:

A	21.6 per cent
B	19.7 per cent
C	18.1 per cent
D	16.4 per cent
E	14.2 per cent

They maintained that these were within the Guidelines as revealed by E.P.D.

The Court notes that on the 13th November, 1979 the Claimants wrote a letter to the Respondents in which they stated as follows:

"We strongly hold that on your implementing the award you should put the following into account, otherwise the union will have no option but to hold that the award is wrongly implemented.

(a) 4th November, 1968 is the inception of counting years of service for those who were in the employ of the company by then and thereafter 4th November of year following would be the anniversary date for such counting years of service and for those who were employed after 4th November, 1968 the inception of counting years of service and the anniversary date would depend on the individual's date of engagement.

(b) You immediately adjust the present notches to new notches for the employees grades and you grant wage increase determined by the Industrial Court.

(c) For those earning over and above their grade rates to be granted increases as provided for in the award.

(d) Those hanging between the notches as a result of provision (b) above to be brought to the immediate notch."

In reply to this letter the Respondents' personnel manager wrote as follows:

"We refer to your letter dated 13th November. We have now implemented the Industrial Court award taking into consideration points (a), (b), (c) and (d) of second paragraph of your letter. You will appreciate that arrears had to be calculated from 1st January, 1979 which has been done in the shortest possible time."

The Court would also like to refer to a letter of 15th February, 1980 which the Claimants wrote to the Respondents' company secretary/financial controller in which they at one point stated as follows:

"(c) You agree that the Court award meant to give wage increase only to the minimum in each grade of K.Sh. 140 for subordinate K.Sh. 160 to the special subordinates K.Sh. 170 to clericals Grade II, etc. Surely you can see that this outlook is not plausible as the Court would not have meant that only those on minimum should get the figures quoted above and the rest should get half the amount."

The Court would now refer to the following two paragraphs in the Court award on page 4:

"The E.P.D. have further pointed out that as against the Claimants' demand of 40 per cent and the Respondents' offer of 8.2 per cent the maximum permissible increase under the Guidelines with 1977 G.D.P. included averaged at 17.5 per cent.

The Court notes that in line with the past practice between the parties, the parties are agreed that the general wage increase should be granted to the workers at the commencement of the new collective agreement instead of being split in two instalments. The reason for this is that the later period of the agreement is taken care of by the annual increments."

It is obvious from the above that the Court intended to give the workers their full entitlement under the Guidelines and in line with the past practice they were to get it in one instalment in the beginning as the later years would be taken care of by the annual increments. The Court would also like to refer to its proviso B on the wage award which clearly states that for the employees whose basic monthly wages are below the specified new minimum rates for their grades their wages shall be brought up to the applicable new minimum rates for their grades and then be granted wage increases for such grades.

The Court referred the document produced by the Claimants to the Employment Promotion Division for working out a detailed analysis and the E.P.D. report shows that the current salary bill per month for the 119 employees is K.Sh. 136,044 and in accordance with the Claimants' interpretation the workers would get an average increase of K.Sh. 178/32 giving a weighted average of about 15.1 per cent. This would result in the total increase in the salary bill per month of K.Sh. 21,220. The E.P.D. confirmed that the Claimants would appear to be within the Guidelines stipulated.

The Court has carefully considered the various points made by the parties in connexion with this application and finds that the Claimants' interpretation is the correct one. Indeed the Respondents themselves, as stated earlier, had agreed to implement the award in accordance with what the Claimants had stated in respect thereof. It appears that later on the Respondents had other thoughts on the matter.

The Court accordingly rules that the Claimants' interpretation is the proper interpretation of the Court award and directs the Respondents that they should implement it forthwith on those lines.

The Court would like to record that the Respondents have confirmed that no employee has suffered or will suffer any wage deduction and the annual incremental rates have been or are to be applied in accordance with the Court award.

Finally the Court cannot in this application consider the Respondents' request that they had made certain typographical errors in the collective agreement and the Court should rectify them.

On the question of compassionate leave para (c) the Claimants' interpretation really is an appeal for the Court to vary its own award. The Claimants' demand was rejected by the Court on this issue. The Court must reject the Claimants' application on this issue as it is not an interpretation application. They would no doubt be in a position to raise this matter again during the next revision of the collective agreement.

Dated the 28th March, 1980.
