THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 87 of 1982

Parties:

Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers
and
Avery Kenya Limited

Issues in dispute:

- Termination of service;
- Leave travelling allowance;
- Sick leave;
- Transfer and disturbance allowance;
- Death of employee;
- Suspension;
- House allowance;
- Minimum wage;
- Sliding scale; and
- General wage increase.

THE Kenya Union of Commercial Food and Allied Workers shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Avery Kenya Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 3rd and 24th December, 1982, and 12th April, 1983, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 21st May, 1982, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 17th August, together with the statutory certificate signed by the Labour Commissioner.

The parties' previous collective agreement expired on 31st October, 1981, and the claimants' acting general secretary and the respondents' director/general manager concluded another collective agreement which, unfortunately, the chief shopsteward and his colleagues at the respondents undertaking have rejected. The claimants then allowed the workers to be represented by an advocate although technically the advocate appears for the claimants.

The parties' submissions were sent to the Division of Manpower Planning and Development with a request by the court that they should be analysed vis a vis the guidelines which report was before the court during the hearing.

Mr. Kaai appearing for the claimants submitted that as far as the workers were concerned there were only two issues in dispute, that is, the general wage increase and house allowance. The respondents on the other hand maintained that it was unfair for the claimants to pick up items which were beneficial to them out of a package deal and reject the other items hoping that they would be further improved.

After the parties had made their submissions during the hearing, it became apparent that both of them had the intention of compensating the workers in accordance with the guidelines, but they got stuck on what the workers' entitlement was under them. On house allowance the respondents have relied on the subtraction approach which the claimants have rejected and insisted that the housing allowance entitlement should be granted on the consolidated wage.

Under the guidelines the workers' entitlement on wage increase is 9.5 per cent per year. This is three-fourths of the rise in the cost of living indices for the period 1st November, 1979, to October 1981. The court notes that the claimants originally had demanded 22.5 per cent each year with the respondents' offer being 9.5 per cent each year as guidelines.

The court would like to set out the guidelines in full since the parties are agreed that they want their full entitlement under them.

"iv (a) Overall wage increases for all income groups covered in particular contract shall average no more than three-quarters of the rise in the cost of living. However, full compensation for cost of living increases should be allowed for the lower paid groups. The percentage of compensation shall decrease progressively as applied to the higher employee groups.

(b) (i) Separate compensation for rent increases in addition to (a) above should be allowed provided that this will not exceed one half of the permissible percentage compensation due for a particular group as provided for under guideline (a) above.

(ii) Where deconsolidation of consolidated wage is deemed necessary the housing element shall be deemed to be no more than 15 per cent of the prevailing minimum wage for the particular groups covered. The total compensation for price increases will be spread in equal instalments so that latter year(s) of the contract period are not left without any increase."

In accordance with guideline (b) (ii) above, the court awards, since the parties want the wage structure to be deconsolidated, that 15 per cent of the consolidated wage as at 31st October, 1981, should be the housing element and the balance is the basic wage.

The court awards in accordance with guideline iv (a) that all workers should get a wage increase of 9.5 per cent on the aforesaid basic wage (that is, consolidated wage minus 15 per cent housing element) for the first year and another 9.5 per cent increase on the workers' basic wage as at 31st October, 1982.

In addition to the above 9.5 per cent increase in basic wage each year, the court awards a house allowance of KSh. 75 per month in addition to the 15 per cent housing element of the consolidated wage with effect from 1st November, 1981.

The court would like to rule that the agreement which the shopstewards rejected and which had been concluded by the acting general-secretary on their behalf is set aside.

The court directs that the other items in dispute should be on the basis of the respondents' offer in the said agreement which during the hearing both parties virtually agreed.

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE No. 118 OF 1982

Parties:

Transport and Allied Workers' Union
and
Kenya Pipeline Co. Limited

Issue in dispute:

Recognition.

THE Transport and Allied Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as claimants and the Kenya Pipeline Co. Limited shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 28th March, 1983, and relied on their written and verbal submissions. The respondents also called Mr. J. Ochino to give evidence in court.

AWARD

3. The Minister for Labour signed the reference of this dispute to the Industrial Court on 25th November, 1982, in accordance with section 8 of the Trade Disputes Act, which was received by the court with the relevant statutory certificates on 1st December.

In this dispute there are two trade unions who are claiming recognition from the respondents, one being the claimants and the other one, the Kenya Petroleum Oil Workers' Union (hereinafter referred to as the petroleum union).

The respondents commenced operations on 17th February, 1978, and pump five grades of petroleum products through an underground pipeline from Mombasa to Nairobi.

The claimants approached the respondents on 1st March, 1978, for recognition and have recruited about 200 members out of the respondents 347 unionizable employees. The petroleum union through the evidence of its assistant general-secretary, informed the court that they had also approached the respondents in early 1978, but could not meet them until 1981 by which time the claimants had also sought recognition from the respondents.

This dispute was looked into by the Ministry of Labour through an investigation committee under the chairmanship of Miss Muchoki and two members, Messrs. Konditi and Adongo. From the records, it appears that this committee conducted a very full hearing and heard lengthy submissions from both trade unions and the respondents, and its finding was that the East African Refinery, the respondents and the oil marketing companies are partners in the same industry, that is, the oil industry, and it was only fair that the same trade union be recognized by the respondents for the purpose of collective bargaining, that is, the petroleum union. It was the committee's view that the respondents join the rest of the workers in the oil industry and recommended that the petroleum union was the right union and the claimants' demand should be rejected. The claimants did not accept either the finding or the recommendation and the Minister for Labour used his powers under the Trade Disputes Act, to send this dispute to the Industrial Court.

The claimants' main argument revolves around the word "transport" because they maintained that the primary function of the respondents is transportation and that they had merely substituted the pipeline for the tankers and trailers which previously use to transport petroleum products from Mombasa to Nairobi. The claimants further accused the respondents of having collaborated with the petroleum union in order to defeat their claim for recognition. To prove this point, they produced a circular dated 9th June, 1982, signed by Mr. S. M. Gandani for the respondents informing all the employees that there would be a trade union meeting to discuss their membership on 11th June at the Nairobi terminal and the assistant general-secretary, Mr. Ochino, of petroleum union would address the meeting.

Mr. Ochino who gave evidence before the court stated that the respondents are part and parcel of the oil industry and that his union had first approached the respondents for recognition. He further explained that the circular calling a meeting which the claimants had produced was issued by the respondents at his behest as he had written to the respondents on this matter. He also referred to the Industrial Relations Charter in which the respondents were considered as part of the oil industry.

The court would like to emphasize that it has given a very close scrutiny to the various arguments put forward by the claimants in this dispute. The court finds that the respondents' business activity is the operation and maintenance of the pipeline through which petroleum products are pumped and supplied to various marketing companies. The products are stored in the tank farm within the Nairobi terminal and are pumped over to the oil marketing company depots. The respondents also have laboratories at the two Nairobi terminals for testing of quality of the products before they are received from the refinery and before they are supplied to the marketing companies to ensure that strict international requirements are complied with.

The court concurs with the views of the investigating committee that the respondents are sandwiched between the oil refinery and the oil marketing companies and that they all form an inseparable entity. They all require each other for their operations and the oil industry without the respondents would be incomplete.

The court has no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that the claimants are not the appropriate union to be recognized by the respondents. The appropriate union in this case is the petroleum union and the 170 odd employees who have joined the claimants under the mistaken impression that they are the proper union should take a note of it.

The court rejects the claimants' demand for recognition by the respondents.

GAZETTE NOTICE No. 2098

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT
CAUSE No. 1 OF 1983

Parties:

Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union
and
Knitting Technics

Issue in dispute:

Wrongful dismissal of Gideon Isiaho.

THE Tailors and Textiles Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Knitting Technics shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 26th April, 1983, and relied on their written and verbal submissions. The claimants also called Mr. Isiaho to give evidence during the hearing.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 16th November, 1981, duly signed by the parties was received by the court on 13th January, 1983, together with the statutory certificates, signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

Mr. Isiaho started working for the respondents in January 1977, and was summarily dismissed on 23rd August, 1980, when it is alleged that he refused to accept a warning letter.

The incident that led to his dismissal started the previous day when the respondents decided to carry out a spot inspection of all the employees at about 5 p.m. when they were leaving the premises. Mr. Isiaho told the court that he and the other employees were asked to strip naked in a small room. He was the first one to be asked to do so and he refused saying that it was not necessary for him to take off all his clothes. He was then taken to the office along with the shop-steward and was later taken to the police station for search. The police searched him and nothing was found on his person. The next day he reported for duty at 8 a.m. and worked until 10 a.m. He was then called in the office by the respondents to accept a warning letter for refusing to be searched. He refused to accept the warning letter because the matter had been settled at the police station. He was then dismissed.

The claimants took up the matter on his behalf and the Ministry of Labour investigated the dispute and its findings and recommendation were as follows:

"Investigations established that the management did not follow proper procedure of inspection in demanding that the employees be naked in the process. In consideration of the nature of business carried out by the employer this was not only unnecessary but also humiliating to the workers.

The management also erred in issuing Mr. Isiaho with a written warning in that the shopsteward did not witness the event as stipulated in the parties' collective agreement. Besides, the police involved did not find him with any property belonging to the employer and therefore all they could have done is look at it as a misunderstanding and nothing more. His dismissal was wrongful.

In view of the facts contained in this report reinstatement would not be to the interest of both parties concerned due to the strained relationship. It is therefore recommended that Mr. Isiaho be paid four months' salary as compensation for wrongful dismissal plus all his terminal benefits if any due to him."

The respondents rejected both the findings and the recommendation and the matter came before the court.

Although the respondents have denied that they asked their workers to completely strip naked, the court is satisfied from Mr. Isiaho's evidence that the inspection that the respondents wanted to carry out that day was not a normal one which the watchman used to carry out at the entrance to the premises by touching the workers over their bodies. The respondents spokesman in court admitted that they had asked the workers to open up their trousers. The court finds that Mr. Isiaho's claim of being asked to strip naked to be true because even the police at the police station advised the respondents' representatives that they should not search their employees by stripping them naked as it was a colonial system. The court notes that the respondents did not call any witness. They informed the court that the witnesses had refused to come but surely they must know that they can always apply to the court for witness summons to be issued.

The court while condemning this humiliating and embarrassing practice ordered the Provincial Labour Officer, Nakuru, to ensure that this practice should cease forthwith as the respondents stated in court that they are still inspecting the workers in the same manner. The court notes that the provincial labour officer promptly acted on the court's instructions and put a stop to such inspections. The court advised provincial labour officer to inform the respondents on the acceptable methods of search in this industry.

On the facts of the case as proved during the hearing the court finds that the respondents' attempt to serve a warning letter to Mr. Isiaho after ordering him to strip naked and taking him to the police station where he was cleared amounts to adding insult to injury. The warning was not called for or justified under the circumstances and the summary dismissal handed out to him is wrongful. Considering all the circumstances of this dispute the court has come to the conclusion that a deterrent award against the respondents is called for and it accordingly awards that they should pay Mr. Isiaho the maximum compensation the court can award, that is, twelve months' wages by way of compensation for the wrongful dismissal that he has suffered.
