THE INDUSTRIAL COURT

CAUSE No. 94 OF 1984

Parties:

Kenya Engineering Workers' Union
and
Metal Box Co. Limited

Issue in dispute:

Termination of services of Peterson Kigotho.

THE Kenya Engineering Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Metal Box Company Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

The parties were heard in Nairobi on 27th February and 7th, 8th, 11th and 12th March, 1985, and in addition to their written and verbal submissions called the following witnesses:

Claimants:

Peterson Kigotho.
Peter Kagiri.

Respondents:

Hiram Ngunjiri.
John Thuku.
John G. Kahura.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 24th February, 1984, was received by the court together with statutory certificates signed by the Minister and the Labour Commissioner.

Peterson Kigotho was employed by the Metal Box Company Ltd. on 4th December, 1968, as casual labourer and thereafter was confirmed as permanent worker on 1st November, 1969. After working for three years, he was appointed "314 machine operator" and classified as grade 5. On 1st October, 1974, he was appointed as flanger trainee mechanic on probation ranging from 3 months to 6 months, and thereafter was confirmed as a flanger mechanic trainee in the can line department on 1st March, 1975. At the time of his dismissal he was earning KSh. 1,122.35 per month and was in grade 3.

The claimants told the court that during the 14 years he had worked with the respondents he had enjoyed his work. They pointed that his problem started when Mr. Kigotho was sent on a skill improvement course on 8th March, 1980, for 3 months to enable him to be promoted to the post of flanger/partner/beader/mechanic.

The claimants argued that when Mr. Kigotho had completed the course, the respondents delayed his promotion deliberately for 6 months instead of 3 months to frustrate him and this delay according to the claimants was attributed to Mr. Thuku who was the superintendent and immediate boss to Mr. Kigotho. They further told the court that Messrs. Thuku and Kigotho were not on good terms and the reason advanced by the claimants was that Mr. Thuku owned a boutique at Thika and Mr. Thuku had asked Mr. Kigotho to buy from his shop but he had refused to do so. Mr. Thuku was thereafter creating problems to get rid of Mr. Kigotho. The claimants further told the court that things became worse for Mr. Kigotho in early July, 1982, when he was removed from his normal place of work to a lower job, i.e. feeder seamer operator and this was communicated to him verbally, and according to the claimants this was meant to frustrate him and to get him out of employment.

The claimants further told the court that on 19th July, 1982, Mr. Kigotho was served with 3 consecutive warnings on the same day and the following day, 21st July, 1982, he was summarily dismissed. The claimants pointed to the court that despite all the allegations against Mr. Kigotho by the respondents, no proper investigation was carried out by the respondents, and Mr. Kigotho was not given a chance to defend himself nor was he given a chance to appeal after he was dismissed and therefore, the claimants pleaded to the court to reinstate him and to award him full compensation. The claimants called Mr. Kigotho to give evidence on oath.

The respondents told the court that Mr. Kigotho was not as good as the claimants would like the court to believe. They recorded three warnings prior to 19th July, 1982, incident which saw Mr. Kigotho out of work. They maintained that Mr. Kigotho was guilty of gross misconduct under the following incidents which separately occurred as follows:

- (a) Reported for work at 6.31 p.m. instead of 6 p.m.
- (b) Sleeping during working hours.
- (c) Used abusive words and insulted his superiors.

The respondents' superintendent and foreman wrote letters of intended warnings to the chief shopsteward informing him of Mr. Kigotho's behaviour. Before the shopsteward did anything about their letters, the matter was reported to branch manager who directed that Mr. Kigotho be dismissed. The respondents argued that the grievant was given opportunity to defend himself but neither he nor the claimants refuted the facts concerning his behaviour on the day in question. Instead they begged for leniency. The respondents pointed out that although Mr. Kigotho was dismissed under section 17 of the Employment Act, he had enough warnings to dismiss him and that he could not have got away with it.

The respondents called witnesses who gave evidence on what took place on the day in question and also refused allegations that Mr. Kigotho was victimized for refusing to be a customer of the superintendents' shop when asked to do so by the superintendent.

The court has given careful thought on this dispute taking into account written and verbal submissions of both parties. The court traced the background of Mr. Kigotho with the respondents since he was employed in 1968, and finds that Mr. Kigotho had enjoyed his work and progressed from being a labourer to the post of flanger/partner/bearer mechanic and was in grade 3. Therefore the court is convinced that Mr. Kigotho was a good worker for over 12 years until 1980 when he was sent on skill improvement course. The court notes that this course was to take 3 months and thereafter Mr. Kigotho was to be promoted but the promotion was delayed for 6 months, and according to Mr. Kigotho, this was attributed to Mr. Thuku who was his superintendent and his immediate boss. It is during this period that their relationship became worse and it was also alleged that Mr. Thuku had requested Mr. Kigotho to be his customer at his boutique at Thika, a request which Mr. Kigotho turned down, and the matter was brought up during a meeting between the respondents and the claimants. The court also notes that Mr. Kigotho was removed from his normal place of work to do a lower job, and the court believes that this alone contributed to the behaviour of Mr. Kigotho being unco-operative. The court also looked into the question of warnings to have been issued to Mr. Kigotho on 19th July, 1982, and finds that the method used was improper. The court also notes that the allegations of the respondents against Mr. Kigotho were not properly investigated by the personnel office.

The court finds that it was the respondents' intention to warn Mr. Kigotho for his bad behaviour on the night in question. This is quite clear from the letters of warning which are clearly worded. Subsequently they decided to summarily dismiss him but did not give Mr. Kigotho a chance to defend himself. The court finds that Mr. Kigotho has suffered a wrongful dismissal and the court awards that he should be reinstated to his job with effect from 1st of the month following the court award provided that a final letter of warning should be issued to him for his misconduct on the night in question. This final warning letter is to be accorded the treatment as laid down in the collective agreement. The court further rules that Mr. Kigotho should not get any compensation or wages for the time he was out of employment.

Given in Nairobi on the 28th March, 1985.

GAZETTE NOTICE NO. 1473

THE INDUSTRIAL COURT CAUSE NO. 95 OF 1984

Parties:

Kenya Engineering Workers' Union
and
Emco Steel Works (K) Ltd.

Issue in dispute:

Unjustified dismissal of John Barasa.

THE Kenya Engineering Workers' Union shall hereinafter be referred to as the claimants and Emco Steel Works (K) Ltd. shall hereinafter be referred to as the respondents.

2. The parties were heard in Nairobi on 13th March, 1985, and relied on their written and verbal submissions.

AWARD

3. The Notification of Dispute Form "A" dated 22nd May, 1984, duly signed by the parties was received by the court together with the statutory certificates signed by the Minister for Labour and the Labour Commissioner.

The grievant worked for the respondents from 31st April, 1979, as a rolling mill helper at a monthly salary of KSh. 570.50 and was dismissed on 21st June, 1983. The circumstances that led to his dismissal took place on 7th June, 1983, when he was summoned by the respondents' personnel officer to his office where he found two police officers waiting. He was arrested on allegation that he stole a wrist watch belonging to one Keshiah Atieno and was taken to Muthaiga Police Station where he was held up to 15th June, 1983.

On 8th June, 1983, the personnel officer wrote a letter to John Barasa who was in custody accusing him of having been absent on 7th and 8th June, and demanded an explanation by not later than 10th June, 1983, to show reason why he should not be instantly dismissed for absenteeism. The letter was addressed care of rolling mill section, Emco Steel Works (K) Ltd. This letter did not reach him as he was in custody until 16th June, 1983. Mr. Barasa on his release gave an explanation about his whereabouts of which the personnel officer was fully aware but he was dismissed on 21st June.

The respondents argued that John Barasa was not a good worker as he had several warnings in his record. In 1983, he had two valid warnings and that he absented himself without permission from 7th June, 1983, so he was dismissed.

The court finds it proved that Mr. Barasa's arrest was known to the personnel officer who later wrote warning letters on absenteeism which the court finds were written in bad faith. This action proves that the respondents wanted to dismiss Mr. Barasa so they used the warning clause to dismiss him knowing fully well that he was in police custody. The court accordingly finds the dismissal to be wrongful.

Keeping in view the bad relationship between the grievant and the respondents and the fact that Mr. Barasa's previous records was not all that good the court does not consider reinstatement appropriate. The court awards that his dismissal should be reduced to normal termination and that the grievant be paid all terminal benefits plus three months' salary as compensation for the wrongful dismissal he has suffered.

Given in Nairobi on the 29th March, 1985.
