TR 200

Facts

A was registered in Mauritius by way of continuation on 12 August 2009 as a private company limited by shares. It holds a Category 2 Global Business Licence ("GBL 2") and carries out investment holding activities through its subsidiaries, in United Kingdom and Singapore.

Further to the amendments brought by the Finance Act 2018 to the Financial Services Act 2007 and the Income Tax Act 1995, A is contemplating conversion of its legal regime from a GBL 2 into a company holding a Global Business Licence.

A holds a 100% shareholding in B, a company incorporated in Singapore. B operates in the financial services industry of Singapore and provides fund management and investment advisory services to Investment Funds based in, as well as outside, Singapore.

While the standard income tax rate in Singapore stands at 17%, B has applied to the Monetary Authority of Singapore ("MAS") and obtained a tax incentive award under Singapore's Financial Sector Incentive (Fund Management) Scheme for Fund Managers, a scheme put in place for the promotion of fund management activities in Singapore.

Under this tax incentive award which is granted for five-year renewable periods, B is eligible for a concessionary tax rate of 10% on income from its qualifying activities, that is, fund management and investment advisory activities, subject to the satisfaction of prescribed conditions. Its income from other sources is taxed at the standard Singapore tax rate of 17%.

Point at issue

Whether A, upon the conversion of its legal regime from a GBL 2 company to a company holding a Global Business Licence, will be eligible to claim credit for foreign tax suffered in the form of tax sparing relief in respect of dividend received from B?

Ruling

Based on the facts of the case, it is confirmed that in accordance with regulation 9 of the Income Tax (Foreign Tax Credit) Regulations 1996, A will be entitled to a tax sparing credit on the dividend received from B provided that this dividend is paid out of the income derived from qualifying activities under the Singapore's Financial Sector Incentive (Fund Management) Scheme for Fund Managers.

TR 201Facts

S is a company registered in Canada and is engaged in gold and base metal minings. Following the merger of S with P, a Jersey based company operating in the same industry, with effect from 1 January 2019, Y was appointed President and Chief Executive Officer ('CEO') of S for the new merged operations.

S currently has operations in Canada, United States of America, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Dominican Republic, Mali, Senegal, Côte d'Ivoire, Democratic Republic of Congo, Zambia, Mozambique, Saudi Arabia and Australia.

S recently incorporated a Mauritius holding company, RRM, to hold certain of its Africa based interests and to remunerate, Y on a month to month basis. It is intended that Y's employment contract, for his role as CEO of S, is to be with RRM which will pay his salary into his offshore account, currently in Jersey. Costs incurred by RRM to accommodate for Y's salary costs will be recharged to S.

Y, who is a South African citizen, currently owns and resides in a house in Mauritius under the Integrated Resort Scheme ('IRS'). The IRS house is Y's permanent place of residence where he and his wife have been residing for the past ten years.

Due to the international nature of his employment, Y travels extensively and returns to Mauritius throughout the year from various countries.

As CEO, Y has ultimate responsibility for the group's operations in all the aforementioned countries and for interfacing with major investors in the key investor markets of Canada, United States and Europe. Consequently, his duties will often be carried out via electronic media across international borders and airports depending on his schedule and travel requirements or whilst returning home to Mauritius.

It is expected that Y will spend approximately one to two months at his home in Mauritius over the course of any tax year. Some of this time will be on annual leave whilst other time will be spent working on various aspects of S's global operations.

Points at issue

1. (a) Whether only the portion of Y's emoluments from Mauritius-based performance will be taxed in Mauritius?
- (b) Whether emoluments derived by Y (and paid in his Jersey account) from performance of employment duties abroad will be taxable in Mauritius only on remittance.
2. Whether the recharge of Y's salary costs can be made to S at cost?

Ruling

On the basis of facts provided :-

1. It is confirmed that -
 - (a) in accordance with Sections 73 and 74 of the Income Tax Act, Y will be subject to tax on emoluments derived from performance of duties whilst physically in Mauritius. For that purpose, the length of stay includes the date of arrival, date of departure, non-business days and annual leave spent in Mauritius.
 - (b) in accordance with Section 5 of the Income Tax Act, emoluments derived by Y in respect of duties performed abroad and paid in his Jersey account will be taxable in Mauritius only on a remittance basis.
2. The recharge of Y's salary cost made to S must satisfy the arm's length principles in accordance with Section 75 of the Income Tax Act.

TR 202Facts

D was incorporated in Mauritius on 12 November 2014, holds a Category 1 Global Business Licence and carries out investment holding activities. It invests principally in listed securities and debt instruments in India and Indian businesses. D is 100 % owned by E, another company holding a Category 1 Global Business Licence. D and its parent are referred to as the “Group”.

The Group has invested in T, a public limited company incorporated in India, with an operational presence in India and Egypt. T also manufactures caustic soda, calcium chloride, chloromethanes, refrigerant gases, industrial salt and specialty chemical intermediates.

E holds a 30% equity shareholding in T while D has invested in 19,902 fully redeemable non-convertible secured debentures of INR 1,000,000 each of T.

The above debentures are listed on the Wholesale Debt Market segment of the Bombay Exchange (“BSE”) and have a maturity date of 22 April 2023.

The debentures have the following terms:

- Coupon rate of 3 % per annum, compounded annually, and payable at the time of redemption; and
- 10 % redemption premium payable upon redemption of the debentures, such that it provides an aggregate yield of 13% compounded annually

In D’s books, the debentures have been recorded at an estimated fair value since acquisition in accordance with the International Financial Reporting Standards.

In September 2018, D entered into an agreement with T for the debentures held by D to be either redeemed by T or alternatively sold to an affiliate of T by 30 June 2019, that is, prior to its maturity date, at a consideration equivalent to the principal amount of the debentures with all outstanding coupon interest payments and the redemption premium.

A significant proportion of the proceeds from the redemption or sale of the debentures will be distributed by D to E to enable the latter to invest in additional shares of T, thereby increasing its equity stake from 30 % to 42.9 %.

Point at issue

Whether gains derived by D, in terms of the redemption premium, from either the disposal of the debentures to an affiliate of T or the redemption of the debentures by T prior to their maturity, will be exempt from income tax in Mauritius?

Ruling

Based on the facts provided, the redemption premium represents income falling under Section 10 (d) of the Income Tax Act and is subject to tax at the rate of 15 %.

TR 203Facts

K holds a global business licence. K is engaged in the activity of financing green energy projects in India. It therefore acts as a pure funding vehicle. K raises funds from overseas lenders in USD which are then on-lent in INR to companies involved in green energy projects. The funds raised in USD are used to purchase Masala bonds from green energy companies based in India. The Masala bonds are denominated in INR. K will therefore be deriving interest from the Masala bonds in INR and paying interest in USD. K is engaged in financing activities and is thus exposed to two main financial risks namely:

- Credit risk; and
- Foreign currency risk.

Since K is dealing in two different currencies and reimbursement of the loan must be made in USD, K is exposed to high foreign currency risks. In order to minimise the potential adverse effects of unfavourable exchange rates between USD and INR, K entered into currency swap agreements to hedge against foreign exchange fluctuations. The swap agreements have been concluded at arm's length and all swap counterparties are unrelated. The purpose of the hedging instrument is to prevent a business loss and K is not involved in any speculation activities. The hedge against foreign exchange fluctuations would either result in a hedging cost or hedging income.

Points at issue

1. Whether the entire hedging costs paid on foreign currency swap agreements to mitigate foreign currency risks is deductible?
2. Whether hedging income earned on foreign currency swap agreements is subject to tax?

Ruling

On the basis of the facts mentioned above, it is confirmed that:

1. The nature of the business undertaken by K necessitates hedging activities. Hedging is a tool for risk management and risk minimisation. Fluctuation in exchange rate may have adverse effect on the profitability of K. Hedging against such fluctuations is considered as a business expense and is an allowable deduction under Section 18 of the Income Tax Act.
2. Hedging, in the present case is incidental to the borrowing and lending activity. Therefore, any income derived from the hedging business is taxable under Section 10 (1) (b) of the Income Tax Act.
