THE TEXTILE PRINTING INDUSTRY

Over the last ten years the Textile Industry has expanded tremendously in the volume and diversity of its production. Helped by the generous incentives granted by the Government the industry has now developed in many sectors far beyond its pioneer stages. Large and efficient units have been established to produce varieties of baft, drills, poplins, shirtings, blankets, towels, printed fabrics, etc., in sufficient quantities for the local market.

Difficulties are arising in the printing sector in particular where existing installed capacity is more than sufficient to meet the country's requirements. The Government does not intend to encourage further wasteful investment in installing additional printing equipment. Government policy is to channel new investment in the Textile Industry to the spinning and weaving of items like grey cloth for printing, synthetic and blended fabrics and other specialised products for which local capacity is still inadequate.

It is therefore notified for the information of investors in particular and the public in general that the Government will not entertain any further applications for pioneer certificates and/or approved user concessions for the importation of grey baft or other raw materials for the production of printed fabrics. All outstanding applications for such concessions automatically lapse.
