ANNOUNCEMENT OF FIELD POST VACANCY

POST TITLE (POST No., PROJECT)
RESEARCH OFFICER

Applied Agricultural Production Research

NIU/78/001

Vacancy Announcement No.—AGO/AGP/598.

Date issued.—3rd July, 1978.

Closing date.—28th August, 1978.

Duty station.—Island of Niue-South Pacific.

Duration.—12 months (extendible).

Starting date.—October 1978.

Background.—The Government of Niue is most concerned to identify and develop opportunities for rapidly increasing domestic production in order to maintain and increase the standard of living in Niue based on indigenous industry in place of external support. It is intended that such increase in production and locally generated income will slow and hopefully halt the rate of net overseas migration and increase the opportunity of producing local employment both cash and subsistence.

There are good opportunities for increasing local production in agriculture, particularly in developing the products of passionfruit and, to a lesser extent, lime. Two major constraints to increased production and revenue appear to be firstly inadequate crop breeding propagation and secondly, unavailability of sufficient data on which to reach correct decisions regarding investment and other inputs such as irrigation, fertilizer, increased acreage, mechanisation etc. brought sharply into focus when the feasibility, of producing/processing lime and passionfruit on a large-scale commercial footing was investigated Oct./Nov. 1977.

The UNDP/FAO mission fielded to carry out investigations in conjunction with Government, recommended proceeding with large scale production, but had to reach this recommendation based on basis of insufficient data regarding local crop yield response in particular to fertilizer and irrigation and local alternatives for passionfruit pollination. The New Zealand mission which visited Niue at the same time also pointed this out, particularly emphasizing need to proceed cautiously regarding large scale production, involving drawing off large catchments of water from subterranean water lens, Niue's only source of fresh water other than rainwater catchments.

However, Government decided to proceed immediately to collect data required to introduce improved crop husbandry and provide answers required to reach decisions on crop investment.

Duties.—The Officer will be responsible to the Director of Agriculture for :

1. Organization, establishment and operation of Research Unit within Agriculture Department ;

2. carry out research into :

(i) short-term : examine and provide guidelines for removing current production constraints on passionfruit and lime crops ;

(ii) long term : (a) nutritional problems associated with all the soil types in Niue, particularly in relation to fruit production (passionfruit, limes, pawpaws), pasture development, root crops and vegetables ; (b) breeding better varieties of passionfruit and limes and other crops that would bring higher yields, adaptability to soils, environment, etc. ; (c) examining other potential economic crops suitable to Niuean conditions ;

3. instruction and provision of research recommendations to the Department for the same to be carried out in the field by Extension Officers ;

4. collect and compile all relevant research information for future reference and to advise Government on matters which may affect agriculture development in the long term ;

5. liaise with overseas agencies on matters that will further advance technology on agricultural development ;

6. collaborate with and supervise national staff ;

7. prepare a report upon termination of assignment for presentation to Government.

Qualification.—University degree in Agricultural Science.

Languages.—Very good knowledge of English.
