- (b) provide for and require the provision of interconnection services to enable licensees to interconnect with each other; and
- (c) encourage interoperability.

PART II

Interconnection

3. Requests for interconnection

- (1) A request for interconnection must be in writing and must include:
 - (a) the date of the request;
 - (b) the interconnection seeker's technical requirements, based on the technical standards of the interconnection provider; and
 - (c) the type of the interconnection that is required.
- (2) An interconnection provider must respond to a request for interconnection within 7 days of receipt of the request.
- (3) The parties must finalise an interconnection agreement within 45 days from the date of request provided that the parties may agree on a longer period, which longer period must not exceed 60 days.

4. Financial feasibility

- (1) For purposes of section 37(3) of the Act, a request is financially feasible where an interconnection request results to an interconnection provider's existing capacity being used efficiently with reference to productivity and will be determined on a case by case basis by the Authority.
- (2) The minimum requirements for financial feasibility are that:
 - (a) there are no adverse financial consequences due to overloading the network of the interconnection provider;
 - (b) the interconnection provider does not have to build further network capacity ahead of budgeted spend; or

5. Technical feasibility

- (1) For the purposes of section 37(3) of the Act a request is technically feasible if the aspect of an interconnection request relating to use or access of technology, connectivity, configuration, design, operation and maintenance in support of electronic communications will be capable of being brought about by the interconnection provider with the means at hand and in the prevailing circumstances and will be determined on a case by case basis by the Authority.
- (2) The minimum requirements for technical feasibility are that:
 - (a) the network does in fact meet the technical parameters of the requesting party's network at the time that the request is made; and
 - (b) offering connection to the interconnection seeker will not have negative effect on the interconnection provider's physical network, network elements, capacity or integrity.

6. Maintenance of any to any connectivity

The terms and conditions of each interconnection agreement must:

- (1) aim at facilitating interoperability and promote interconnection in a manner which promotes any to any connectivity so that:

ANNEXURE A

EXPLANATORY NOTE: DRAFT INTERCONNECTION REGULATIONS

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Purpose

- 1.1.1 The purpose of this explanatory note is to provide stakeholders with an explanation of the contents of the latest draft of the Interconnection regulations.
- 1.1.2 Given the time delay since the last published drafts (i.e. December 2007) this explanatory note seeks to: (a) contextualize the introduction of new concepts including financial and technical feasibility and dispute resolution, as required by the Electronic Communications Act, Act No 36 of 2005 ("the Act"); (b) explain why certain provisions have either been included or omitted with reference to the history of the regulations on interconnection in South Africa and the needs of the industry as set out in the written and oral responses made to the Authority as reflected in the December 2007 draft regulations; and (c) set the regulations in context with reference to international best practice.
- 1.1.3 This note is not legally binding, nor is it a legal opinion. It is published purely to assist stakeholders and to provide insight into the thinking behind the regulations.

1.2 Background

- 1.2.1 Interconnection is an important way of introducing competition in the electronic communications sector. The Authority notes that while interconnection agreements are in essence commercial agreements, they are always subject to some form of regulation, particularly in the absence of a competitive environment.
- 1.2.2 The Authority does not intend to regulate the parties' commercial relationships, but to instruct parties on the required form and minimum requirements in relation to the content of interconnection agreements and to facilitate the attainment of the objectives of the Act particularly those set out in Chapter 7.

- 1.2.3 The first draft interconnection regulations drafted in terms of Chapters 7 of the Act were published in March 2007 under Notice 1795 of 2007 to replace the Interconnection Guidelines of 2000 published in Notice 1259 of 2000, the Supplementary Interconnection Guidelines of 2002 published in Notice 3457 of 2002.
- 1.2.4 ICASA then held a public consultation process, received written comments from interested parties and held hearings in October 2007.
- 1.2.5 A revised set of regulations was published in Notice 1795, Government Gazette 30611 of 19 December 2007 incorporating the comments received from the earlier public consultation process.
- 1.2.6 This was followed by a public workshop held in April 2008.
- 1.2.7 The current draft regulations thus capture stakeholders' comments and concerns raised through the public workshop and consultation processes referred to hereinbefore.
- 1.2.8 The remainder of the explanatory note sets out the key changes to the latest draft of the regulations and provides the Authority's rationale for such changes.

2. DRAFT REGULATIONS

2.1 Definitions (regulation 1)

The regulations do not attempt to define a lot of concepts as these concepts are dealt with in the body of the regulations. We have only provided definitions where it is necessary. Hereinafter are the terms we have defined:

2.1.1 "Compliance Notice"

This notice will be issued by the Authority in the discharge of its obligations in terms of section 39 (4) of the Act. The regulations refer to a Compliance Notice to be issued by the Authority once the agreement submitted to it has been found to be in compliance with the regulations and the Act ("the governing framework"). If the agreement is not compliant, the parties will receive certificate from the Authority within the stipulated timeframes indicating the amendments that need to be made in order to align the agreement with the governing framework. Once a Compliance Notice has been issued, the agreement is considered to have been filed with the Authority and will become effective and enforceable.

2.1.2 "Interconnection Provider"

In the regulations, the definition of the term interconnection provider includes those licensees who may not be obliged to interconnect but are actually providing interconnection and therefore fall under the regulatory framework for interconnection.

2.1.3 "Interconnection seeker"

The definition of interconnection seeker is not limited to existing licensees, but includes applicants for an individual licence.

2.2 Purpose of regulations (regulation 2)

- 2.2.1 The regulations seek to guide the industry on how the process of conducting negotiations and concluding agreements should be handled. In the case of interconnection this is done with a view to facilitating any to any and end to end electronic communications.

2.3 Requests for interconnection (regulation 3)

- 2.3.1 The Act requires the Authority to determine time periods for responses to requests from interconnection seekers. These timeframes form the basis of disputes on the inability or unwillingness to agree or negotiate an agreement under section 37(4). Where a request is made it should refer to an interconnection seeker's technical standards requirements in relation to the interconnection providers' technical standards. This will minimise the number of frivolous requests received by interconnection providers. It will also assist in the speedy determination of disputes on reasonableness in terms of section 37(2) of the Act.
- 2.3.2 The Authority has taken account of suggestions on time periods for the negotiation of agreements and considers 45 days, which are business days as defined in the Act, to be sufficient to conclude a standard interconnection agreement.

- 2.3.3 The debate about the ability of broadcasters to provide interconnection services has been duly noted by the Authority. The Authority believes that the inclusion of broadcasters in the scope of the regulations is necessary legally, given that the definition of "interconnection" in the Act includes broadcasting service licensees.

2.4 Financial and technical feasibility (regulation 4 and 5)

"Financially feasible" and "technically feasible"

- 2.4.1 The important concepts of "technical feasibility" and "financial feasibility" will assist the Authority and the industry in establishing useful guidelines and benchmarks for the determination of what is "reasonable" in relation to the provision of interconnection, but in the future, in relation to other forms of access as well. The concepts also introduce an important commercial consideration namely that a request for interconnection must be considered in relation to the spreading of or allocation of risk between the parties' respective networks, their businesses, and ultimately, their financial viability.
- 2.4.2 Disputes are dependent on the Authority's determinations regarding the "reasonableness" of a request. The Act stipulates that "reasonableness" will be measured by technical and financial feasibility, and promotion of efficient use of networks and services. These concepts as set out in the regulations seek to guide the industry on the Authority's thinking on how a technical feasibility or financial feasibility determination will be made. It should be noted that the Authority has defined "financially feasible" to include "economically feasible" since licensees are likely to follow different accounting and financial models whereas the principles of economics are uniformly applied.
- 2.4.3 The Authority is aware that the criteria for determining technical and financial feasibility are not applied in quite the same way in other countries, and in cases where the criteria are similar or the same those countries have had the benefit of many years of precedent – when the terms were applied in a particular way having regard to the circumstances subsisting at the time and arguments raised then by operators. "Technical feasibility” and “financial feasibility” have therefore become ‘terms of art’ which do not need specific definition but are generally applied by all parties in the same way. The Authority notes this, but for the sake of clarity to the industry the Authority has developed its own meaning given the stage of development of the industry and the lack of precedent on these issues in South Africa. The Authority has nonetheless identified requirements and an approach to the application of such definitions will be set out in the dispute resolution regulations.

2.5 Maintenance of any to any connectivity (regulation 6)

The primary reason for interconnection regulation is to facilitate any to any, end to end communications. This must be facilitated in a technology-neutral manner, hence the technology-neutral approach taken in drafting these regulations. Technology specific terminology is used in these regulations in a descriptive manner, to illustrate for example the types of Points of Interconnection. The use of technology-specific terms is not intended to limit the technology choices for licensees.

2.6 Principles for interconnection agreements (Part III)

- 2.6.1 Quality of service for interconnection is regulated with reference to other regulations published by the Authority and in this regard (i.e. end user regulations, and technical standards regulations), and international obligations.
- 2.6.2 Interconnection information, which is basic information, must be made generally available in order to prevent discrimination, and to facilitate the conclusion of agreements.
- 2.6.3 The Authority has noted the concerns raised in stakeholders’ submissions on the previous drafts of the regulations regarding the confidential treatment of information. As stated hereinbefore, the relevant general provisions in relation to confidentiality under the ICASA Act (section 4D) will be applicable in this regard.

2.7 Interconnection Information (regulation 12)

- 2.7.1 The Authority believes that the provision of interconnection information is an important requirement in that information must be available as provided by the interconnection provider and based on such provider's own requirements. This will cut down on frivolous requests and will similarly facilitate reasonable requests.

2.7.2 This provision is a specific requirement of the Act.

2.8 Required terms and conditions of agreements (regulation 15)

2.8.1 This section sets out the required 'standard' terms and conditions for interconnection agreements. The list of terms and conditions has been considered against international best practice and the detail of the agreements, under the proposed headings, will be left to commercial negotiations between the parties.

2.9 Disputes (regulation 16)

2.9.1 The dispute resolution regulation is an important part of the interconnection regulatory framework in particular where there is information asymmetry and where operators have different positions in the market. To leave disputes to operators to resolve between them may well result in complete failure to agree. Such failure to agree, particularly where one operator holds a dominant position, can cause prejudice to other operators and eventually have a negative effect on consumers.

2.9.2 The Authority notes that the industry should be guided, by a single set of dispute resolution procedures which will be consistent, for both disputes emanating from interconnection agreements and other disputes brought before the Authority and the Complaints and Compliance Committee ("CCC").

2.9.3 Given the above, we have included a framework for the types of dispute that may be lodged with the Authority.

2.10 Requirements for submission of information to the Authority

2.10.1 The Authority notes concerns raised by parties in their submissions around the treatment of confidential information. The Authority confirms that confidentiality applies where relevant, under section 4D of the ICASA Act.

2.10.2 Concern was raised in some submissions with respect to ICASA's ability to request information from time to time regarding interconnection information from the industry. ICASA confirms that it may, under section 4(3)(g) of the ICASA Act, request such information.

2.11 Review and filing of agreements (regulation 17, 18, and 19)

2.11.1 A distinction must be made between the date on which the agreement is effective and enforceable, and the commencement date. The commencement date is a date that is commercially agreed by the parties, with reference to their internal requirements (such as a target launch date), and must be a date after the Compliance Notice is issued.

2.11.2 The Act requires that interconnection agreements be "submitted" to the Authority once concluded. It furthermore requires that such agreements must be "reviewed" by the Authority to ensure consistency with the Act and the regulations. Once reviewed and if the agreement complies with the regulations a Compliance Notice will be issued and the agreement would be filed by the Authority. The agreement will become effective and enforceable upon filing.

2.11.3 The Authority is the central repository for interconnection agreements and will take responsibility for the pro-active publication of the agreements and ensure that such agreements are available in its library. Operators are not required to publish their agreements but must provide agreements upon request.

2.11.4 The Authority proceeds on the understanding that it is the current practice, and given the nature and history of interconnection in South Africa, that all interconnection agreements must be reviewed by the Authority.

2.12 Operation, suspension and termination of agreements (regulation 20 and 21)

This section of the regulations is consistent with previous approaches in previous drafts of the regulations. In addition to the previous requirements, this section now provides for the commencement of agreements and requires that, for the avoidance of doubt, the commencement date of an agreement must be after the issuance by the Authority of a Compliance

Notice.¹ This section furthermore provides for the termination of an agreement for convenience as agreed between the parties.²

2.13 Contraventions and penalties (regulation 22)

The penalties imposed will be relative to the offence and it is anticipated that in relation to interconnection offences will in the main be for non-compliance by a licensee with an order of the Authority or the CCC.

2.14 Transitional arrangements (regulation 24)

2.14.1 The Authority shall ensure that all agreements that have been entered into historically, in terms of the Telecommunications Act of 1996, Act No. 103 of 1996, (as amended), are amended and aligned with the new governing framework. It is therefore incumbent on stakeholders who have entered into existing agreements to review and where necessary amend them for submission to the Authority within the timeframes stipulated.

2.14.2 The Authority is of the view that a total of six months is required to review all of the agreements in the sector. The table set out below will assist the Authority in ensuring that it is not inundated with agreements that are submitted at the last minute, but rather that the submission is staggered thus enabling the Authority to manage its workload. The Authority has used 2006, the year in which the Act became effective, to determine when agreements should be submitted for review.

Year agreement entered into	Date to be submitted to ICASA
On or before 01 January 2007	Within 3 months after the coming into effect of the regulations
On or after 01 January 2007	After the 3 months mentioned above within 6 months after the coming into effect of the regulations

² See regulation 21

2.15 Repeal of regulations (regulation 25)

Once published, these regulations will repeal the previous regulations published under the Telecommunications Act, 1996 (as amended), in their entirety hence the requirement to resubmit existing agreements to the Authority and to make them consistent with these regulations.

3 CONCLUSION

The Authority has published this explanatory note along with the latest draft of the regulations in the hope that it provides interested parties with a context for the present drafts.
