SCHEDULE ONEADDITIONAL NOTES TO CHAPTER XVI OF THE EAC COMMON EXTERNAL TARIFF

1. A. Tools for the assembly or maintenance of machines
To be classified with the appropriate machines, assembly or maintenance tools must satisfy the following three conditions concerning their nature, intended use and presentation :
 - (a) they must be tools, i.e., hand tools of heading No 4417 00 or 8205 or, for example, tools falling within subheading 8203 20, 8203 30, 8203 40, 8204 11, 8204 12, 9603 29, 9603 30, 9603 40, 9603 90. Measuring and checking instruments of chapter 90 are excluded in all cases;
 - (b) they must be intended for the assembly or maintenance of the appropriate machine. Where the tools are identical, only those which must be used simultaneously are to be classified with their machines. Where they are different, only one of each kind of tool is allowed;
 - (c) they must be presented for customs clearance at the same time as the appropriate machines.

B. Interchangeable tools

To be classified with the appropriate machines, interchangeable tools must fulfil three conditions:

- (a) they must be tools, i.e., tools falling within heading No 8207 or, for example, tools falling within heading Nos 4016, 4204, 5911 and 6909 or within subheading 6804 10, 6804 21, 6804 22, 6804 23 or 9603 50. Moulds (heading No 8480) and accessories, including accessory apparatus (of, for example, heading No 8466) are not considered as tools and consequently do not qualify under this Additional Note;
- (b) they must form part of the normal equipment of the appropriate machines.

The following are considered part of the normal equipment of a machine :

- (i) any number of identical tools which can be accommodated on the machine simultaneously;
 - (ii) one of each kind of tool if the tools are different;
 - (c) they must normally be sold with the appropriate machine and be presented for customs clearance with it.
2. A machine in a disassembled or unassembled state may be imported in several consignments over a period of time if this is necessary for convenience of trade or transport.

In order to be able to declare the different constituent parts under the same tariff heading or subheading as the assembled machine, the declarant must make a request in writing to the customs post not later than the first consignment and attach:

- (a) a manual, diagram or, if necessary several diagrams, of the machine showing the serial numbers of the most important constituent parts;
- (b) a general inventory containing an indication of the characteristics and approximate weights of the different parts and the serial numbers of the principal parts referred to above.

The application may only be accepted in fulfilment of a contract for the supply of a machine which can be regarded as complete for the purposes of the EAC tariff Nomenclature.

All the constituent parts must be imported through the same entry point within the allowed time. However, in special cases, the competent authorities may authorize importation through several points of entry. This time limit may not be exceeded unless a reasoned and justified request for an extension is made to the competent authorities.

Upon each partial importation, a list of the parts making up the consignment with references to the above mentioned general inventory must be provided. The customs declaration for each consignment must contain descriptions of both the part or parts making up the consignment and the complete machine.
