GOVERNMENT NOTICE NO. 36 OF 2022

The Parliament of Lesotho

Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Financial Consumer Protection Act, 2022

(Circulated by the Authority of the Honourable Minister of Finance Honourable Thabo Sophonea)

The main object of the Act is to establish the rights of consumers of financial products and services and the manner of exercising and protecting these rights. The Act applies to all market participants that offer financial services and products in Lesotho.

The Act recognises the supervisory role played by the Central Bank of Lesotho as the Regulator of all financial institutions in Lesotho under the Central Bank of Lesotho Act, 2000. The Central Bank is further empowered to, among others, inspect and examine financial service providers, request information about the activities, practices, policies and procedures of financial service providers as well as determining consumer complaints handling and dispute resolution process.

The Act provides for a standard to be applied in advertisement and promotional material, the type of statements to be issued by a financial service provider, the charges, format, timing and content to be provided in such statements.

The Act goes further to provide for limitations on the conduct of a service provider in offering a service and gives the guidelines on how the service provider should perform his duties and functions.

The Act further provides for obligations of a financial service provider towards a consumer and a need to notify the consumer of a default and inform him of his rights prior to commencement of enforcement proceedings.

The Act also obliges a service provider to comply with the applicable legislation like the Data Protection Act, 2011 and Credit Reporting Act, 2012 and it provides that it is a responsibility of a service provider to inform the consumer that credit information will be collected and shared within a credit reporting system.

The Act prohibits retention of certain personal items such as ATM cards, passport or identity document for collateral purposes. It makes it a responsibility of a service provider to get early warning signs for consumers who might be undergoing financial difficulty.

The Act makes it a requirement for a service provider to have a policy that will help govern the relationship over and above the written agreement and obliges the Regulator to establish a consumer complaints unit in order to respond to the complaints against the service providers.
